of Washington firms concerning the distribution of the booklets in which they have participated:

R. P. Andrews Paper Company—"The City Beautiful" booklet is one of the most effective advertisements for the National Capital I have ever seen. We mailed out 1,000 of these little brochures to customers and prospective customers in Pennsylvania, western Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia, and North and South Carolina. During the last thirty days we have received visits from 108 of the persons to whom we sent the booklets. All of them told of the receipt of the booklet and declared they had read it with great interest. In addition to words of thanks from the persons who visited the store we have received many letters of appreciation from those to whom copies of the booklet were sent."

ustomers a copy of the booklet has been inclosed. Copies also have been ent to personal friends living in other localities. To strangers from other have given copies of the brochure. The cities who have visited the store we have given copies of the brochure. The booklet has made a great hit with every one. Of the 1,000 copies which the house obtained several hundred were given to hotels in this section of the city for distribution among their tuests."

National Capital Press — "Having printed the City Beautiful booklet, we have been greatly interested in the reception which it has received from the zeneral public. To business associates and personal acquaintances we have included copies in our daily business correspondence to persons and firms located in other cities. We have received a number of letters commenting on the booklet. We have found that it is a form of advertising for the city that has not merely been hurriedly looked through, and then thrown in the waste paper basket. Correspondents have told us they intend to use the booklet for reference when desiring information about the National Capital. Although the brochure is small in size, it contains many facts concerning Washington which will work for the better understanding of conditions here."

Gunston Hall School—"We have found the Washington, the City Beautiful, booklet a valuable advertisement for Washington. In our correspondence with parents of scholars at the school and with the parents of prospective students with us we have included copies of the booklet. The booklet contains many facts about the National Capital which are presented in a pleasing manner. The many illustrations also are good advertisements for the city."

Appreciated Wherever Received.

M. A. Leese Optical Company-"We have sent many copies of the booklet to our out-of-town correspondents, and have learned that they have been appreclated wherever received. Those to whom we have mailed copies include opticians and oculists who buy supplies from us, and also individuals who transact business with us by mail. Some of the booklets have been sent separately, while others have been included in our regular correspondence." American Security and Trust Company—"Believing the "City Beautiful hooklet to be a valuable advertisement for the National Capital and for ourselves, we placed an order for 3,000 copies. These we have distributed to our depositors residing in Washington, and we have also sent several hundred copies to out-of-town correspondents. On every hand we have heard favorable comments about the booklets."

Maurice Joyce Engraving Company—We have sent many copies of the hooklet to firms and individuals located throughout the south with whom we do business. The reception which they have met has been most encouraging. We have inserted copies in our husiness correspondence, and have received letters of appreciation for having done so. We keep a pile of the booklets in a conspicuous place in our office and invite every one visiting us to take one." from us, and also individuals who

Many Inquiries by Mail.

The Board of Trade and Chamber of 'ommerce each has obtained an issue of 1,000 copies of the booklets. Not a day passes but what letters are received at the headquarters of these two orcanizations asking for literature con-cerning the National Capital. They come from all sections of the United States. In reply to such letters copies of the "City Beautiful" booklet are being sent out. Some days as many as twenty inquiries of this nature are re-ceived. Officials of both organizations report that the booklet is approximately ganizations asking for literature conreport that the bookiet is proving a valuable advertisement for Washington.

Both the Board of Trade and Chamber of Commerce are urging firms of all descripitions to co-operate in the movement to advertise Washington and themselves by making arrangements with the National Capital Press for the preparation of 1,000 or more of the booklets. Attention of firms is being called to the fact that by doing so they will be doing a twofold good.

PARTY ABOUT MADE UP FOR COMING "GAMBOL"

Retail Merchants' Association Start Tomorrow Afternoon on "Boosting" Excursion.

Only six reservations are left on the Retail Merchants' Association spring trade boosting gambol scheduled to be gin tomorrow afternoon, according to an announcement made today by Secretary Columbus. When six more be complete, for the stateroom capacity have been reached. There are only ac-commodations for 110 persons. No res-ervations will be made later than to-

Solution. All report that the little brochure, telling in a concise way important facts concerning the National Capital and illustrating its beauties by numerous reproductions from photographs, has created a favorable impression everywhere. Scores of letters of appreciation have been received by firms which sent copies of the booklet to out-of-town customers. In addition to these, patrons residing in the nearby towns of Maryland, the Virginias and the Carolinas have made mention of the receipt of the booklet when visiting this city to make purhases.

Valuable as Advertisement.

Firms which have co-operated in the distribution of the booklet report they have found it to be a valuable advertisement, not only for the National Capital, but also for themselves. Copies of the booklet prepared for individual distribution by firms contain an imprint on the cover stating that it is presented with the compliments of the establishment. One of the twenty-four pages of the booklet is devoted to an advertisement of the firm's business. There are forty-six illustrations in the booklet, which is printed in a sepia tone of ink on heavy paper.

Various methods have been utilized in the distribution of the booklets. Practically all of the firms have included copies in their daily correspondence with business associates located in other cities. Scores of copies have been sent to personal friends residing throughout the United States.

It is said in unofficial quarters here that the elder statesmen at first were strongly opposed to the ultimatum to China, feeling that Japan had risked too much and that she was likely to lose the sympathy of the world and therefore do harm to vital permanent nterests. They even raised the feasioility of dispatching a special plenipoentiary to President Yuan Shai Kai to arrange the controversy, it is said. The minister of finance is also reported to have questioned whether the financial condition of the empire justified the radical step.

The press generally deprecates the necessity of further concessions to Some newspapers express the fear that the impression will go abroad that the elder statesmen are still the power behind the throne.
